Texan Leaves Largest Will Probated Here

$3,504,204 Left to Relatives;
Lived on Knapp Island in Summer

By JIM NESBITT

The $3,504,204 estate of Texas cattle king G. L. Waggoner has been probated here in Supreme Court.

It is believed by court house historians to be the greatest estate ever to go through the legal processing in Victoria.

James Dunsinuir, in 1920, left $3,322,517 and his wife, in 1937, left $2,283,431, including Harley Park, now Canadian Joint Services College.

Waggoner, one of the fabulously wealthy ranch tycoons of the Lone Star state, owned Knapp Island in Colborne Passage, Haro Strait, off the northern tip of Saanich Peninsula. The island is on the ferry passage between Swartz Bay and Salt Spring Island, Puffin-Berger-Harbo.

At Knapp, Waggoner spent a few of his old-age summers, his family and friends traveling between his island hideaway and Texas in a fleet of private planes. He lived quietly enough on the island, fishing and hunting, gardening and reading.

Only now and then he left the island during the summers to do business in Sidney, where all the residents knew him as a genial and benevolent character, who would spend $10,000 without a question, but who would argue an hour about 10 cents and sleep around in the village until he found what he thought the best buy in shirts or cheese.

The B.C. part of his huge estate is valued at $38,877, and includes nearly $10,000 cash in the Bank of Montreal in Victoria. Knapp Island is still owned by his family.

Waggoner died a year ago in Wilbarger County, Texas. As well as his ranching and horse raising on the range in Texas and his British Columbia island home, he owned a Spanish-style residence in San Miguel County, New Mexico, and the Three D's Stock Farm in Tarrant County, Texas.

Nowhere to Equal Gulf

He bought Knapp Island from the estate of Hollywood's Victor Fleming, director of "Gone With the Wind." He had traveled extensively, but insisted there was nowhere to equal the Gulf of Georgia and its islands as a summer paradise.

Knapp Island, 27 acres with a fascinating history, for years was home of the well-known pioneer Harvey family. Once it was owned for at least a century by the Hudson's Bay Company, which used it as a trading post. Indians took their rich furs there in dugout canoes and Hudson's Bay Company officials from Victoria went to Knapp and traded white man's trinkets for magnificent furs.

Lady Stabb saw pictures of the island in an English magazine and bought it, intending to live as a hermit in what to her was a "seaside wilderness at the earth's end. But, for some reason unknown today, Lady Stabb never came to British Columbia. In 1912 Col. J. S. Harvey bought Knapp from Lady Stabb's estate. He was a son of James Harvey, pioneer Nanaimo merchant, and his wife, who was a daughter of Robert Dunsinuir, Col. and Mrs. Harvey, who was a daughter of Capt. James Gardin, made their permanent home on Knapp for many years, traveling in their own boats to and from Saanich.

Nearest neighbor to Knapp is Pier's Island where the Doukhobors were incarcerated 20 years ago, to the fury of everyone on surrounding islands.

In 1945, Knapp was sold by Robert Dunsinuir Harvey, K.C., prominent Victoria lawyer, son of Col. Harvey, to Victor Fleming, who lived on the island a few years.

Under Fleming and Waggoner the old Harvey house was enlarged and made luxurious with half a dozen bathrooms. A lagoon was developed for the most elegant deep-sea yachts of the millionaires who often visited the hosts of Knapp.

The island was named in 1838 by Capt. Richards of H.M.S. Plumper after Kempster Malcolm Knapp, R.N., instructor in H.M.S. America, which was on this coast in 1845-46.

Truck Driver Unhurt; Three Car Passengers Injured

Logging truck owned by Gar Underwood, 3092 Millgrove, presents a problem in towing. The truck dropped about six feet into a ditch on East Saanich Road yesterday, sustaining $600 damage. Driver was unhurt.

Total loss was this car driven by T. H. Davies, 1008 Falkland, after it was in collision with car driven by Robert H. Teskey, 1022 Southgate, last night at the corner of Catherine and Wilson. Mrs. Minetta Teskey was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering possible fracture to her right kneecap, and two other passengers in Teskey's car, Calvin Teskey, 11, and Glen Belcher, 10, suffered bruises. —(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

Logger's Death Third in Row

NANAIMO, Nov. 9 (INS). — The third death from logging accidents was reported last night at 9:40 in Nanaimo General Hospital when Wilfred Hamilton died of injuries. Two other loggers met death from mishaps in the same area within 72 hours.

Albino Sernagiotto died Monday and Albert Sutton was fatally injured the same day. Hamilton, a brother-in-law of Sernagiotto, was injured on Thursday.

U.S. Rejects Reds' Demand

PARIS, Nov. 9 (INS). — Russia's demand for a world disarmament conference was rejected flatly by the United States today while free countries in the United Nations began backing America's plan for peace and Yugoslavia accused the Soviets of hostile acts.

American Ambassador Philip Jessup told newsmen that the U.S. rejects Russia's counterproposal to the peace-disarmament plan devised by Washington and supported by Britain and France. He declared that the U.S. will drive the Big Three proposal as far as possible through the current U.N. general assembly meeting.

Princess Lively Guest At P.E.I. Mink Farm

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 9 (CPI). — Princess Elizabeth showed a lively feminine interest in furs and their origin during a hectic visit to a Prince Edward Island experimental farm today.

The Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh examined prize mink and fox. As they left the exhibition marquee, hundreds of children took police lines by assault, trampled rope barriers and came within touching distance of the royal tourists.

The farm visit was one of a busy round of functions during the couple's one-day stop here. Leaving tonight aboard the cruiser Ontario for Sydney, N.S., they will continue to Newfoundland and then home to England. Both the visitors asked numerous questions of Dr. C. K. Dunn, superintendent of the Dominion experimental fur farm at Summerside.

GIVEN CAPE

This was understandable because Princess Elizabeth had been presented a few hours earlier with a royal sapphire fox cape by Prince Edward Island. She asked whether any animals were on exhibit similar to the gift.

The answer was "not exactly" — the nearest shown was pearl platform.

She also asked whether mink can be ranch-bred for such a coat as she received from Canada for a wedding present, and when she wore today. The answer was "no." "Only wild mink provide such fur."

Egyptians Angered

CAIRO, Nov. 9 (AP). — Egypt accused Britain tonight of using Nazi-like tactics in pouring armed forces into the disputed Suez Canal zone.

A formal note handed to the British Embassy said the "uninterrupted influx of British troops can only encourage and intensify spontaneous movements of resistance of the Egyptian people."

A British Embassy spokesman said Egypt's note "contains one true statement, which is that we mean to stay on the canal."

The Egyptian note said the British actions "recall acts of Nazi authorities during the Second World War." It protested alleged British thefts, shootings and other acts of force.

It accused Britain of effecting an almost complete seizure of the canal itself contrary to treaty rights.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP). — Rebel stevedores ended a $1,000,000 tieup of east coast docks today.

Margarine Voting Pitfalls Outlined

Butter Stocks Adequate

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CPI). — A dairy industry spokesman today cast his eye over recent butter trends and forecast there will be no shortage this winter.

W. K. St. John, national council secretary, predicted also in an interview that there will be no recurrence of "crisis" prices which pushed butter up to 85 and 90 cents a pound nine months ago.

Cleaner butter currently is selling at about 70 cents a pound. This year the government has ordered 10,000,000 pounds from foreign sources. Private industry has purchased 4,000,000 pounds. The government's butter, when all of it arrives, will remain in storage until the market shows signs of tightening up.

Solicitor Recommends Referendum Cancellation

City solicitor Arthur Patton has recommended that the city drop the proposed December referendum on margarine.

In a letter to the mayor and council yesterday, Mr. Patton stated that "any bylaw purporting to authorize such a referendum would be ultra vires."

He states that such a referendum could be permissible where "a specific request has been made" by the voters, and then only where it would come within the headings of the bylaw sections of the Municipal Act.

The mayor and other city officials met to discuss the matter yesterday.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Mr. Patton points out that control over margarine is a matter assigned to the provincial government as declared by the Supreme Court of Canada on Dec. 14, 1948.

The province subsequently dealt with the matter by passing the Oleomargarine Act in 1949 authorizing coloring up to 1.610 per cent sa. Mr. Patton said: "This council, therefore, should not in any manner interfere with the purposes of that act, and if it was so considered by the council, then the council would be acting outside its jurisdiction."

The resolution was introduced Tuesday by Ald. Wally Skillings and passed by the council. Voters were to be asked if they favored the idea of amending the margarine act.

Mr. Patton said earlier yesterday the city had invoked the "good government" rule as authority for the referendum.

"It has since transpired that council has not had any great demand, and it would not be proper for our council to enter into any scheme which might embarrass the government one way or another," he said.

A report yesterday stated that Municipal Affairs Minister R. C. MacDonald had indicated the city might be committing an illegal act by submitting the referendum.

The minister did not say definitely that the city would be breaking the law, but suggested there was some "danger" in proceeding with the referendum.

The provincial government would not block the referendum, unless someone objects, Mr. MacDonald said.

The Municipal Act allows municipalities to put referendums only on matters with which they have the power to deal, he advised.

But, he said, he plans no action to stop the referendum unless someone lodges a formal complaint with his department.

U.S. Coast Guard Opens Inquiry Into Ship Blast

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 9 (INS). — A coast guard investigation is under way tonight into the oil explosion that gutted the steamship George Walton, took the lives of six crew members and forced the survivors into lifeboats in a storm 300 miles west of the Washington coast.

Three of the 30 survivors are injured. Medical officers said all the injured, as well as those who spent the night in open boats, will recover.

A chartered West Coast Airlines plane flew 23 men to Seattle and five others headed south by air in a coast guard plane.

One man, second assistant engineer Gus M. Larsen of Portland, Ore., died in the fire that flared up in the Walton's fire room.

Five others were lost at sea, four in a lifeboat which overturned only a few yards from one of the rescue ships, and the other when he lost his grip on a rope ladder and slipped into the sea while weakly trying to climb aboard the Panamanian ship Katherine.

Meanwhile, the coast guard cutter Northwind still was trying to put a towline aboard the firecracked shell of the Walton. Heavy seas hampered the operation.

Crew members said the fire broke out while one of the men in the engine room was cleaning a strainer in an oil line. Oil spurted onto the hot boiler and burst into flames which spread rapidly through the fire room.

Churchill Calls For U.S. Help

LONDON, Nov. 9 (INS). — Prime Minister Winston Churchill made an apparent bid for more American aid tonight when he claimed that a U.S. atomic base in England placed Britain "in the forefront of Soviet antagonism."

He said that Britain "took peculiar risks" under the present Labor government of Clement Attlee "in providing a principal atomic base for the United States in East Anglia."

Low's Newest Character To Appear in Colonist

Something distinctly new now by a tousle-haired, bearded character typifying an appearance in Sunday's Colonist. "Ordinary fellow in contact with the difficulties and absurdities of the present-day world," in quote Low's own description of his whimsical creation.

Neither a political cartoon nor a comic strip, World Citizen captures desirable elements of both. It will not replace Low's famous political drawings, which will continue to appear from time to time—World Citizen will instead be a special Sunday feature of The Colonist from tomorrow on.

Civil Servants Pay Respects to Dead of Two Wars

Annual services commemorating civil servants who died in two world wars were held yesterday in rotunda of Legislative Buildings. ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Dominion tax vultures have swooped on Esquimalt and Oak Bay to collect sales tax on concrete pipe which those municipalities make for their own use.

The action seems unjust. Two thrifty municipalities were trying to save money by making their own supplies. The reward for their enterprise was a nasty wound in the pocket-book from a set of sharp legal claws.

Such was the profit exacted by commercial makers of concrete pipe that Esquimalt still saved money by making pipe after the tax blow fell. So will Oak Bay, I imagine. But that isn't the point.

In the case of Esquimalt, the Dominion is not simply giving with one hand and taking away with the other. The Dominion is taking away with both hands. Enormous government buildings in Esquimalt go tax-free, and the only recompense is a niggardly payment in lieu of taxes. Esquimalt has to provide services from which the Dominion benefits.

Instead of saving "thank you," the Dominion sends Esquimalt a bill for sales tax on drainpipe.

And the sad fact is that the Dominion has just as clear a right to the tax as Shyluck had to the pound of flesh. A better right, probably. Shyluck lost on a technicality, but the government isn't likely to suffer the same fate.

The Special War Revenue Act, 1927, I believe, called for a "consumption or sales tax of 4 per cent on the sale price of all goods produced or manufactured in Canada, payable by the producer or manufacturer at the time of sale thereof by him."

Those were the words that created one of the most distastefully unfair of all our taxes. The rate has since been increased to 8 per cent. There are some essential goods, but drainpipe isn't one of them.

The municipality isn't selling anything, but the law says that covered like a blanket. There is a section about goods that are "for use of the manufacturer or producer, and not for sale."

"The minister may determine the value for the tax under the act and all such transactions shall, for the purposes of the act, be regarded as sales."

Municipalities can't fight the tax in court, but they may well press for a change in the law.

The senior government can tax a town for its home-made drainpipe. Then what about its home-made road signs, its home-made streets, sidewalks and city hall? No doubt the government can tax those too, and if it finds out, it probably will.

What if I build a rabbit hutch, or whistle a pipe-stand as a birthday present for Aunt Azetha? The Dominion sales tax manometer will come knocking on my door, I suppose. I can hear his rasping voice now.

"What are you doing with that hammer and those nails, Mortimore?"

"Well, I, uh... I was just putting a new shelf in the cupboard."

"Are you aware that you are manufacturing an article and therefore are liable to pay Dominion sales tax?"

"Well, no. You see, the old shelf fell out and..."

"Never mind that. What's that chunk of wool on the chair?"

"It's a pair of socks my wife is knitting for me, sir."

"Is she aware that if she completes and makes use of the socks without obtaining a manufacturer's license and paying sales tax, she is liable to a fine of up to $1,000 under section 106071 of the act?"

"No, but I don't have to worry about it. She's been working on 'em for seven years, and she hasn't finished one sock yet. When she does, I'll let you know."

Census Re-Orients Population

A GOOD many lessons are to be learned from the 1951 census in Canada, topped by the amazing growth of urban areas in the last decennial period. While some of this increase in the cities can be accounted for by incoming settlement from other lands, the disturbing drift from land to town apparently continues unabated. Ottawa's spurt in population as the national home of the civil service is another manifestation, if not a surprise. Greater Victoria drops from 10th to 13th place in the roster of cities of more than 100,000 population with the help of Saanich, Oak Bay, and Esquimalt, without which it would not be there at all. Vancouver as a counterweight, emerges in the third position of cities in Canada, with a gross population of well over 500,000.

Montreal with 1,370,000, and Toronto with 1,108,000 people, stand out as the only metropolises in Canada. Quebec, one of the oldest settlements in the country, has settled in sixth place. Edmonton and Calgary emerge upon swift growth in the west; and Hamilton, Windsor and London similarly in the east. Contrary to some prior conception, Halifax is larger than Victoria by nearly one-third.

If our pride is thus humbled on the score of numbers, it remains undaunted on the consideration of quality. Greater Victoria is rich in home-owning, garden-loving folks, who enjoy life too well to be drawn through the mangle of progress merely to be counted as a point or two up in the national census. At any rate that is our story, and it looks like we shall have to stick to it for another decade at all events.

There is another lesson, much closer to home, which citizens in the Greater Victoria area—officially 103,199 population, excluding babies born since—will have to take to heart. This is that separately as four different municipalities they simply do not place on the national roster by comparison with more than a score of other centres. United and combined, however, Greater Victoria has climbed over the 100,000 mark, with all of the sociological, political and economic connotations of that. If there is a more fundamental argument in favor of municipal union, in due time and season, one does not know of it. United we stand; divided we can be brushed off by every senior and junior government agency, and will be until amalgamation is an accomplished fact.

Higher Price for Protection

INDICATIONS that automobile insurance rates are likely to go still higher in the near future are disturbing but not unexpected. This is the price all insured motorists have to pay for the carelessness and reckless speed of that relatively small proportion of drivers responsible for an accident rate which each year becomes more alarming. It is useless to blame this on the increased number of cars, since insurance rates are mathematically calculated on averages, balancing claims against premiums. It makes little difference how many more cars there are except in so far as they add to congestion of streets and highways.

Almost all accidents are preventable on somebody's part. Leaving out cases in which persons other than motorists are at fault, it is human negligence either at the wheel or as to the mechanical condition of the vehicle driven which causes nearly all the deaths, injuries and property damage in traffic. That is not to say that all negligence is conscious or wilful. There is the contributing factor of nervous tension and fatigue, a reflection of the times we live in which shows itself in excessive speed on the open road, irritability and impetuous driving in city traffic.

Motorists themselves are not wholly responsible for increases in insurance rates, however. The cost to insurers of repairing a damaged car is steadily mounting, due to higher labor scales and prices of replacement parts. The manufacturers enter into this side of the picture, too, because the streamlined design and useless trim added to modern cars have turned even a dent into almost a major repair job.

Unavoidable as they may be, the general effects of constantly increasing insurance rates are to be feared, because they tend to induce hard-pressed car owners to take chances on running without insurance protection for themselves and those they may hit. Every uninsured car is a double hazard on street and highway.

Sensible Change in Annuities

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is to be commended on its intention to bring the Annuities Act more up to date by doubling the amount of permissible annuity contracts and offering a more flexible choice in endowment, co-partner and other forms of return to voluntary subscribers. The present maximum annuity of $1,200 per annum has to some extent been out-reached by the times. The suggested new maximum of $2,400 would be reasonable, and that much more inducement to individuals to save on their rainy day ahead.

In making the announcement, Labor Minister Gregg left the impression that the annuities branch has had a timely change of mind in regard to the whole matter. The long wrangle with annuitants over income classification and other facets of the present statutory set-up did far more harm than good. After all, if even one individual can be encouraged to make self-provision for old age in this country that is all to the good. The annuities structure was undoubtedly sound, but it was not too popular. The proposed changes would do much to remedy that condition if they are brought into operation as amendments to the present statute. Of particular benefit in this would be the progressive liberalization of such contracts and their relief from unnecessary red tape.

THOUGHTFUL ACT

Sir,—It would be appreciated if you would publish this word of appreciation and thanks to the boys who were standing on the curb with flashlights at the corner of Bowker Street and Cadboro Bay Road on Sunday night in the heavy fog, showing drivers where to make the turn.

CECIL V. ENO,

360 Gorge Road West, Victoria, B.C.

VETERANS' HOSPITAL

Sir,—I recently read an article in your paper re the naming this hospital the Princess Elizabeth Hospital. Can I put in my two cents worth? With all due respect to Her Royal Highness, I think it would be better, if named the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. In that way we are not only paying homage to our Princess but to a past Queen, our present Queen, and we hope, our future Queen. Personally, I think the idea of changing the name of the hospital is a good one. Veterans' Hospital as a name tastes too much like regimental stuff.

GEORGE WHITLEY,

SERVICE PAY

Sir,—In spite of spiralling costs and increased expenses from day to day, it is sometimes good for us to give a little sober reflection to the old truth that there are always people a lot worse off than ourselves. This comes home to me particularly on reading a recent issue of the English Daily Mail, and I think that a great many people may also be interested to know that in that issue the following facts came to light. United Kingdom troops have been informed that they are to get no local overseas allowance; no campaign allowance and no tax rebate for their service in Korea. The official excuse given is that "there is nothing to spend money on in Korea." Even in the politest language this decision naturally is not popular with those who in undesirable horror and hardship are fighting to prevent a scourge which affects us all from spreading to our own doorsteps.

The following official weekly rates of pay may also give some of us food for thought: Canadian private, £13 6s; Australian, £9 15s; New Zealander, £8 9s, and British private, £4 4s.

(MRS.) BRENDA GOODE,

122 Beacon Avenue, Sidney, B.C.

MILK CONTROLS

Sir,—Your article entitled "Milk Controls Have Failed," strikes me so right and to the point that I am prompted to congratulate you on the excellent insight that you have on the subject.

As you say, "The place for government control is over cleanliness and quality, for the protection of the community's health," and this control should not embarrass the producer beyond his capacity to pay.

Keen competition will protect the consumer, and only those dairymen who can really deliver the goods will stay in business.

FRED H. SHULDRAKE,

Beaver Lake Road, Saanich, B.C.

VIVISECTION

Sir,—It is hypocrisy to talk of "safeguarding the human treatment of animals" under vivisection, when the whole processes of this brutality add up to the greatest inhumanity since the abolition of slavery. In the opportunity and naive betrayal by the S.P.C.A. of its own members, as well as the animals it pretends to protect, is seen the reason for an inefficiency which has long been apparent. Let those who desire mercy for animals forget this listless body and transfer their allegiance to that humane body which is really concerned with the suffering of animals.

GORDON BLYTHE,

KINDNESS SHOWN

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me a short space in The Colonist? I entered the Salvation Army Home as soon as it was opened six months ago. I have received the greatest kindness and attention from all those in attendance.

"In so much as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

God bless the Salvation Army.

Pirate Gold

By FRANK KELLEY

ONE of the world's most notorious sea-rovers was hanged, with some nine members of his crew, as long ago as 1701 in London. He will probably be remembered as long as Drake, however, who, while he was a great navigator, was rated as something of a legitimate freebooter owing to the consistent manner in which he plundered craft flying the saffron flag of Spain, any time and place.

Drake, the Englishman, hewed pretty close to the line in his voyaging and was satisfied with preying on the enemies of England; but Kidd, the colonial product, was not so fussy. He had acquired quite a reputation for his exploits on the Spanish Main in the 1690's, a reputation which, no doubt, had something to do with his selection by the home government of the time to do away with the pirates who were causing the East India Company some trouble on another ocean.

According to bits of the record, one learns Kidd was not very discriminating in the mission he undertook. As a colonial skipper his name was something of a household word, but not one of veneration, along the east coast of America. True or not, he was credited with deeds of daring against vessels of all flags. So it was more or less inevitable he should carry on as he did.

With a commission from London in his possession to overhaul any vessel not displaying East India Company insignia, the sight of some things seen on some of the craft boarded was too much for his buccannering blood. He seized English ships, so it was said, looted and destroyed them, as well as others, like the Great Mogul's ship Quedah Merchant and the French trader Rouperelle, operating under license for the East India Company. This particularly incensed top officials of the English concern and led to the hanging.

Maybe it is some of the treasure looted from these and other ships during the few years Kidd was busy in eastern waters that the 12 men have in mind as they sail the yacht Lamorna, after repairs are made, towards a small island south of Slam, where Captain Kidd is supposed to have buried some of his plundered treasure. Successful or otherwise, the search will provide a lot of excitement for the adventurous group before the yacht returns to its home port. The old pirate and his treasures have sparked many an expedition; but if any of his gold has ever been discovered the finders have not sought to broadcast the good news.

The Nova Scotia coast was the locale of many a pirate story—old as the days when the daring buccanniers scoured the American coast from Florida to Newfoundland—Not 100 yards away from where our house stood 65 years ago on the Harbor Highway of North Sydney, men had dug numerous holes 20 to 30 feet deep, hunting for the gold of Yankee pirate Kidd.

No one ever heard of them getting rich overnight, favorite time for the digging exercise. They never worried either, apparently, over the old wives' tales which held that the spirits of the Negro guardians, killed when the treasure was buried, would wreak plenty of harm when the bones were disturbed. There were tales, too, supposed to be humorous, of tricks played upon the nocturnal diggers by pranksters.

All down the years, too, until comparative recent times, anyway, one could expect to find treasure hunters of any accessible bay on the Nova Scotia coast. One well-combed spot is the little village of Advocate in Evangeline's land on the shore of the Basin of Minas. Books could be written about the attempts made there; but would not bear witness to any get-rich-quick results.

Reports From Ottawa

IT'S a great pity that Newfoundland isn't in the middle of Canada, so we'd have better seats from which to watch the current political jamboree in our baby province. For the show is almost worth the price of Newfoundland's admission into confederation.

I doubt if even in the domain of M. Duplessis one could find such ebullient politicking as that which has occupied Newfoundlanders and intrigued other Canadians in the two and one-half years since the island became a province. It has been almost as though the people there went on a spree to celebrate the return of political self-government after the 15-year hiatus when the island was governed by a commission appointed by the British government.

Out of it all, little Joey Smallwood, the former newspaperman, hog raiser and chronicler of Newfoundland's past, the man who engineered confederation, has emerged as Liberal premier and undisputed political master of Newfoundland.

Now Smallwood, for reasons best known to himself, has called what appears to be an unnecessary general election. It's only a little more than two years since he was installed in office following the new province's first provincial election. He has an ample majority, with the Liberals holding 20 of the legislature's 28 seats. The Progressive Conservative opposition led by John G. Higgins is weak, and the C.C.F. is even weaker.

Smallwood's explanation is that he needs a new mandate from the people to proceed further with his all-out, "make or break" program of developing Newfoundland's resources and adding new industries to the provincial economy.

Australia, Too!

By ARTHUR MORLEY

SYDNEY, N.S.W.—Princess Elizabeth's Australian tour is developing daily into another marathon journey—even bigger than the Canadian journey. The various state authorities, working out details of the itinerary, are adding a few hundred miles here and there until it seems certain that:

1. The Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh will fly a total of at least 7,000 miles;

2. They will visit one-third more towns than originally planned for the King and Queen; and

3. Their rest periods will be compressed to permit them to cover more ground in answer to the enthusiastic clamor of rural districts to see them.

To explain a rise in commodity prices the law of supply and demand is cited. And what's more touching in this strange new world than an occasional dip into the medieval?

It's tough for bores and filibusters in the German parliament at Bonn, where an electric clock has been specially installed for them. The length of the speech is set in advance. The timepiece is connected with white, yellow and red lamps which light in turn to warn the orator that he has

But he's got along quite well so far without such a vote of confidence, judging by new industries he has been instrumental in obtaining for his province—notably a cement plant, a gypsum wallboard and lath factory and a birchwood plant. Moreover, at his behest the legislature this year authorized the spending of $13,000,000 to continue resources development and establishment of seven other new industries.

When Newfoundland entered confederation, it placed more than $40,000,000 on deposit with the federal government. This was accrued wartime surpluses of the former island government, and had been ticketed for post-war rehabilitation.

Recently two Progressive Conservative M.P.'s from Newfoundland, W. J. Browne and Gordon Higgins, have done their utmost to get the government here to disclose how much is left in this kitty. Premier Smallwood, on the eve of his election announcement, said there was $20,000,000 as yet unused. Other reports place the total left at $13,000,000.

However, Finance Minister Abbott refused to divulge the figure. He won't even comment on Smallwood's statement that there's $20,000,000 left, explaining that Ottawa is in the position of a banker who could not ethically disclose the amount in a client's account.

What Browne and Higgins would like, of course, is Ottawa's admission that Smallwood has run through nearly all of the money—if he has, so the admission could be used by the Tories in the election.

But while there are some things about the colorful premier of Newfoundland that the government here doesn't like, the fact that he is a big Liberal isn't one of them. The Liberal government at Ottawa wants the Liberal government at St. John's to remain in office—which may be a reason why Abbott is keeping mum on how much money Joey has left in the bank.

Their Barrier Reef holiday, off Queensland, will be only one day. It is not yet decided if they will stay at the luxurious Royal Hayman Hotel, which will be cleared of other guests, or whether the liner Gothic will anchor offshore.

They will have a three-day rest on a sheep station in the outback of New South Wales, where saddle horses will be provided, and it is hoped that a kangaroo hunt will be organized.

Their most arduous engagements will be a visit to the new Snowy River hydro-electric project, in the Australian Alps, and a flight to a Northern Territory cattle station, beyond Australia's "dead heart" desert country.

Terms such as Hunter's Moon and Moon of the Painted Leaves are romantic and out of date. How about a Fuel Bill Moon or Moon of the Overdue Installment?

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE majority of people who enjoy a casual delight in wild nature—bird spotters, amateur botanists, and those who take the same pleasure in viewing a wild animal in its natural setting as a gem lover takes out of fondling an emerald—are under the impression that now that November has has folded up. The birds have migrated south. The flowers are a weed awa'. The animals have denuded up. Nothing could be farther from the fact.

It is now that wild nature is most exposed. The veils and curtains of the leaves have been drawn aside. Depending on what part of Canada you live in, there are from 30 to 60 species of wild birds who intend to spend the winter right around you, many of them far northern species you will otherwise never see unless you go out into the winter woods and fields to hunt them. As for the amateur botanist, one of the basic methods of identifying trees is by their winter buds, and every manual on trees prints details of these winter buds to make possible distinctions that could not otherwise be made between closely related species of tree.

But it is the mammals that are most revealed by the onset of winter. However skillful a walker you may be, you could hunt the country woodlots and swamps all summer and fall, and never see a fox or a rabbit. But once the leaves are down and especially after a fresh fall of snow, there is scarcely a patch of woods even within a few miles of the biggest city that does not contain some thrill for the wary walker and the alert eye.

Before he died, a kinsman of mine who made a great success of his business sent for me to talk to him about fish and deer, hawks and lady slipper orchids. I took along books with pictures for him to study in his last bed.

"I hate to die," he said, "thinking of all these things I never laid eyes on."

A-Secrets

By H. J. J. SARGENT

LONDON. When a few weeks ago two more scientists, Dennis O'Connor and William Campbell, both engaged in work at the National Institute of Medical Research, suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, merely telling their families that they were going abroad, the British people got a nasty shock. Especially since one, O'Connor, was said to be leftist, and both of them were connected with work on radio active isotopes.

It was natural to recall the similar vanishing act done by two foreign office officials, and the more recent disappearance of Bruno Pontecorvo—presumed to have gone behind the iron curtain.

The government did not share the popular anxiety, being unperturbed. So are the heads of the National Institute of Medical Research, and here are their reasons.

Sir Charles Harington, director of the N.I.M.R., said: "To begin with, O'Connor was not an avowed Communist; he was known to have left wing leanings and that is quite a different thing. In the next place, neither he nor Campbell could, in the course of their work, have gleaned any vital knowledge of atomic energy which could be of the slightest use to another country."

"The National Institute of Medical Research is an institution devoted exclusively to medical research. Isotopes are required in considerable numbers for the purpose of analyses and for other branches of medical studies. Of course, O'Connor and Campbell used them in the same way as many other students and workers did."

"It is true also that they had occasion to visit the Harwell atomic research station two or three times to obtain supplies of such isotopes," Harington continued, "but to get the isotopes they needed they would not, indeed, they could not go anywhere near the departments actually connected with the study of atomic energy."

"I remarked that it had been suggested that it was comparatively easy to enter the Harwell building, and that anyone with a certain knowledge of atomic science would be in a position to pick up a good deal of secret information."

"That is nonsense," replied Sir Charles. "It is, on the contrary, very difficult, in fact, impossible, for an unauthorized person to penetrate the research station. Only properly accredited visitors are allowed to enter. He would be an extremely clever man who could hope to find a loophole in the tight restrictions that are now imposed."

"I repeat, O'Connor and Campbell could not have taken abroad any secrets learned in the course of their work here. So far as we are concerned, we are not bothered about the two men. Not in Scotland Yard. We simply take it that the men have resigned their posts, and there the incident ends."

However, it is understood here that since the disappearance of Pontecorvo restrictions at Harwell have been drastically overhauled and tightened to bring them in line with those in the United States. No known Communist, it is claimed, could slip through the net.

Screening is effective and constant. The government believes that it has abolished all possibility of any more doubtful persons acquiring secret atomic knowledge, then running away with it to a foreign country.

Postmen, Servants Will Work Monday

Although Monday is a holiday for many industries and businesses, it will be "just another day" for federal civil servants and for the Victoria Post Office.

Mail deliveries and all post office functions will operate on a regular weekday schedule.

Don Corbett, president of the Amalgamated Civil Servants, said, "There will be no holiday for federal civil servants, even though provincial workers may be off."

Mr. Corbett wired Ottawa for a ruling on whether there would be a holiday or not.

Esquimalt Ratepayers May Ask Referendums

Esquimalt municipal council may be asked to prepare two referendums for presentation to electors next month, Esquimalt Ratepayers' Association executive announced last night.

The executive has recommended that one referendum deal with installation of traffic lights at necessary areas in Esquimalt, the areas to be determined by employing the services of a traffic expert outside the municipality.

The executive said it was prepared to recommend Sgt. Brooke Douglas of Victoria City Police.

A second referendum would deal with public opinion on the sale of colored margarine. Association president G. K. Sammon said the executive felt "a minority is ruling the majority."

Shorter Delivery Hours Asked by Local Milkmen

City council has received a petition from 90 Victoria milk drivers and salesmen to have the milk bylaw amended to shorten the hours of delivery by about three hours.

A letter from R. McCulloch, president of the Teamsters Joint Council No. 36, of which the city Milk Drivers and Dairy Employees Union, Local No. 461, is an affiliate, makes the request and includes 90 attached signatures.

The present bylaw sets the hours of delivery at between 4 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. in the summer months and between 6 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. in the winter months.

The drivers want the bylaw to read between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

A change, states Mr. McCulloch's letter, will "eliminate the petty thieving that is prevalent during the early morning deliveries and help stop the large turnover of labor in the industry."

He adds that in the opinion of union members the amendment will also help to eliminate "the heavy distribution costs."

The petition will be considered at the next legislative committee meeting, say city hall officials.

Phone Workers Veto Joining Bigger Union

Members of the B.C. Federation of Telephone Workers have decided against joining an international union.

A group spokesman said that the final votes showed, Friday, that there were 1,153 workers in favor of the move and 1,030 against. A two-third majority was required.

Bids for the merger of the 3,500 member federation had been made by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A.F.L.-T.U.C.) and the Communication Workers (C.I.O.-C.L.U.).

If the workers had voted in favor of joining an international union, a second vote would have been held to select the union.

U.K. May Seek Help In Defense Projects

LONDON, Nov. 9 (UPI).—The Evening News speculated today that Canada and Australia may be asked for help in certain secret British defense projects now held up by lack of manpower.

The paper, without going into details, implied that labor shortages are most acute in production of aircraft and guided weapons. There was no indication in what way help would be sought from the two Commonwealth countries.

Unofficial estimates are that Britain's three-year £4,700,000,000 defense program will mean that thousands of British workers will have to change jobs within the next few years. There are up to 500,000 job vacancies.

DR. C. MELLIS MAIR

Was honored at the convention of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology last night in San Francisco by having conferred upon him the fellowship of the organization.

Dr. Mair is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology and has practiced here for the past five years. Last year he was also honored by the British Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists by being made a member of that society.

Leeming To Seek Election

A 43-year-old trust company employee, Ken Leeming, of 137 Bond Street, will seek election to one of the two city positions on the Greater Victoria School Board.

Mr. Leeming is the first to announce his candidacy as city school trustee.

A property disqualification forced Mr. Leeming to withdraw last year.

Chairman of the city division Community Chest fund drive this year, Mr. Leeming is married and has two children. He has been with the Royal Trust Co. for 26 years.

Major R. H. Green and A. W. Treven, city trustees whose terms expire this year, are both undecided whether they will run again. Oak Bay trustee J. A. de Bourcier also said he is not yet ready to state his intentions.

W. P. Jones, present Saanich trustee, announced his candidacy for re-election earlier this month.

HAVANA, Nov. 9 (AP).—Frank Sinatra and his bride, actress Ava Gardner, arrived last night for a Cuban honeymoon.

Pound Keeper Scorns S.P.C.A. Plan

By RAY BAINES

The "forgotten man" in the current S.P.C.A.-City Council negotiations over the city pound, veteran city pound keeper A. C. Kennedy, has a brief, but pointed comment.

"It won't work," he says emphatically.

He was referring to plans suggested to council by the S.P.C.A. that the society take over pound duties for the city for a fee of $5,000 a year.

"Sure, it will help the S.P.C.A. with their expensive animal quarters, to keep up, but I can't see what good it would do the city," Mr. Kennedy said as he swept down one of the pens.

"This fellow doesn't look too unhappy, does he?" he asked as he pointed the head of one of his "boarders," a big, black, shaggy-haired mongrel.

Mr. Kennedy said that since the city had installed an electric heater in the pound, it was quite cozy.

Asked if he would accept a position as pound-keeper with the S.P.C.A., should they take over the pound, Mr. Kennedy shook his head.

"What, leave the city after 28 years and paying into a pension fund all that time? I'm not crazy, man."

He said he thought the S.P.C.A. would want a lot more than $5,000 a year for the pound.

Mr. Kennedy indicated that several years ago he had been in the city pound.

"Maggie" Commodore Given Dapper Turtle

MARINE NEWS

Commodore K. F. Adams of the magnificent received a unique birthday gift during the vessel's Mediterranean tour. It was a dapper tramp freighter owned by the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, an 80-year-old firm now set up in exile headquarters in Taipei, Formosa.

The trim 10,000-tonner is one of a dozen tramp freighters owned by the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, an 80-year-old firm now set up in exile headquarters in Taipei, Formosa. None of the crew has seen his home on the mainland for more than two years.

The only contact now with families and loved ones is by letters smuggled out of the country. Any hint of how they are transmitted could lead to death or imprisonment for the couriers.

And the members of the crew don't know when they will see their homes again. "No one knows for sure what they would do to us," said Ilo Tsun, second officer of the ship, "but we can imagine. It will be many years before we see our homeland again, maybe never."

James Proudfoot recently appointed city prosecutor, announced last night in a Vancouver telephone interview that he was not running for the leadership of the Young Liberal Federation.

He also said that he is through with politics as soon as his present commitment as president of the B.C. Young Liberals has expired. Most prominently mentioned B.C. member for the top post is D. A. Hay of Kamloops.

Proudfoot Declares Political Days Over

Mr. Proudfoot said the Quebec member from Montreal, Guy Rouleau, is a "very strong candidate" for the national presidency. The election is set for 3 p.m. today.

Swindle News Said Less Confidential In Vancouver, Report Seen by Winch

The "confidential" report on the Gilles swindle may not be so confidential in Vancouver, it was learned from that city last night.

The report followed a joint Victoria police-C.M.P. investigation to find out what had happened to about $250,000 said to have been extracted from several B.C. victims by convicted swindler Clyde Gilles.

Brief digests of the report have been issued by Attorney-General Gordon Wismer and the Victoria police commission who said that most of the report was confidential.

Nothing has been released from the report giving any hint of what became of the large sums swindled. The report said Gilles had been living "high," but securities and property are not accounted for.

Although the report has been kept confidential in Victoria, a Vancouver report indicates that the report has been seen in its entirety by C.C.F. leader Harold Winch and by Vancouver legal firms who were shown the report by Winch.

Victoria police commission in releasing a carefully worded press release on the report declared that it had now "closed its files" on the investigation and left all future action up to the attorney-general's department.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said the report showed no grounds for further prosecutions. Several victims of the swindle ring are now on social assistance in Greater Victoria.

City Pioneers' Daughter Dies; Sold Stamps Here

Laura Lillian Maynard, who sold stamps in the post office for 45 years and was personally known to thousands of Victorians, will be buried from Sands Chapel at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Miss Maynard was born in Victoria 78 years ago and had lived here all her life. She was daughter of George H. Maynard, who came here from England in 1838.

Miss Maynard was one of seven children. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Rose P. Macdonald, and a brother, William, at her Queens Avenue residence, and a brother, George H., on Mayne Island.

Dead are Albert J. Fred, one-time postmaster in the Parliament Buildings, Hub and Mrs. Hannah Sewell.

Nazi Secret H.Q. To Be Destroyed

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP)—The secret military headquarters from which Hitler and his generals plotted the war and directed the Battle of the Bulge is going to be demolished, U.S. Army authorities disclosed today.

The headquarters is an elaborate underground system of tunnels and rooms built into a hill near the small town of Ziegenberg, about 30 miles north of Frankfurt.

Yule Trees To Cost More

Like everything else, the cost of Christmas trees is taking a jump here this year. Price per bale of one to six trees is $1.25, compared with last year's starting price of 75 cents, it was learned from tree dealers here Friday.

Companies will start outgoing shipments Nov. 20. Operators are allowed to cut trees only on land which is suitable for growing commercial timber.

To Play Hebe

BERNICE IRWIN

Who will assume the role of Hebe in the stage production "H.M.S. Pinafore" being presented at the Royal Theatre Nov. 20, 21 and 22, under sponsorship of the Victoria Gyna Club. The popular actress played the same role six years ago in the first production of the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society. All proceeds of the forthcoming stage show will go toward various charities supported by the service club.

Separate schools have been an issue in B.C. for many years. Two Roman Catholic schools in Malahide were closed last April because of failure to obtain greater financial support from the B.C. government.

LONDON (CP).—A centre in Queen Mary's Hospital at Roehampton, which fits artificial limbs to patients, reports it treated more than 30,000 patients in the past year.

B.C. Group Of Liberals Under Fire

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9 (CP).—Charges of "packing" were heard today at the second session of the Young Liberal Federation national convention here.

Prairie and eastern delegates complained that British Columbia representation.

William Appleby, Winnipeg, questioned the B.C. group's constitutional right to seat 40 vote representatives.

He contended B.C. was entitled to a maximum representation of 36—twice the number of federal seats in B.C.

THE NEW Beatty

THE BEATTY SPACE SAVER IRONER

Compare this ironer with others costing twice as much. The roll of the Space Saver is bigger and longer—saves crimping on flat wear. The ironing shoe is wider and longer, with a much greater ironing surface. The heat is really efficient—1050 watts—and thermostat controlled. But look at the difference in price!

Munro's Treatments Appear Answer As Canucks Blank Battling Royals

There may be something to this hypnotism business after all. Vancouver Canucks had another pre-game session with hypnotist Ray Munro last night and replied with their second straight Pacific Coast Hockey League victory. The Canucks blanked the leading New Westminster Royals, 2-0, before a sellout crowd of 5,000 at Vancouver with rookie Larry Poppen scoring both goals in the final period.

Owner Coley Hall said he will probably take Munro to Tacoma for tonight's game against the Rockets. "If Munro continues to help us, I'll have no other alternative but to make him part of our equipment," Hall stated.

Once again it was the stellar work between the pipes of Red McAttee that sparked the Vancouver victory. The clubs battled on even terms for two periods before Poppen broke the deadlock on a three-way passing attack with Bill Hartshorn and Hal Talar. He intercepted a passout from behind the New Westminster goal for his second marker while the Canucks were a man short.

At Edmonton, Calgary Stampede's snapped Edmonton Flyers' undefeated streak at eight games by edging them, 5-3, in a roughly played game.

Stampede's were backed by good goaltending by Russ Dettell and skated at a fast clip to keep Edmonton goalie Bill Brennan in constant trouble.

Referee Ed Powers handed out 15 penalties, including misconducts to Colin Kilburn and Eddie Joss of Flyers in a hectic third period. Play was delayed twice in the final period as fans littered the ice in protest against penalties.

Trailing 4-3, in the dying minutes, Flyers pulled Brennan from the nets for an extra for-

Decision on Baker Scheduled Tonight Before First Game

A definite decision on the play-guard, Wright will probably in the inter-city "A" exhibition basketball series, will be given before Individuals meet Vancouver-Ellers in the opening game at Victoria High School tonight.

Will Cain, president of the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association, reported last night that in a telephone conversation with Al Irvin, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, he had received assurance that a decision would be made known by 8 p.m. tonight.

Irvin stated that the C.A.B.A. is generally in favor of Baker playing if it does not jeopardize the Olympic status of the other players competing. He said that ways and means of protecting the Olympic standing of the other players would be looked into and a decision rendered tonight.

POTENTIAL POWERHOUSE
With Baker included, Individuals' line-up is a potential powerhouse. Baker, rated Canada's greatest basketball player, a former teammate of Baker on now famous Domino teams, give the club a scoring trio which would be the envy of any coach. And their defensive abilities are not overshadowed by their marksmanship.

Backing this trio are holdovers Bob Hayes, Elmer Curtis, Rookie Wright and Vince Clarkson of last season's Individuals. Other members are Vic Dale, coming out of retirement, and Wes Maudslaid, youthful teammate of Andrews at Alberni last season.

Andrews will be coaching Victoria High Totems on the mainland tonight and will not be available. If Baker is given permission to play, the starting line-up will have Baker and Curtis flanking Clark, with Dale and Hayes at

JOHNNY CLARK

Jimmy Barsley who has signed a playing form. Ellers will also present a high-scoring line-up.

Missing from the Vancouver line-up will be New Munro, high-scoring forward, who is sidelined by a leg injury, but most of last season's players will be in uniform. A notable addition is Leo Lizzere, scoring ace with New Westminster Luckies last year.

The game will start at 8:30 and will be used to test fan reaction. If the game does not draw, Individuals will withdraw from the remainder of the inter-city schedule and limit their activities to exhibition games against Seattle and touring clubs.

Arrow Furniture Intermediate "A" girls and Macdonald's senior "B" women will meet in the preliminary at 7:30.

Victoria High Cup Hopes Surge With 5-3 Decision

By IAN GLENDA

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9.—Victoria High School's hopes of regaining the Howard Russell Cup, emblematic of the Greater Victoria inter-high senior rugby championship, took a sharp upswing here today. Its "Rep" squad gained a 5-3 decision over Kitsilano High School in an exhibition game.

Don Burgess provided all the points for Victoria High. The popular track star outfooted the opposition on a muddy field to cross the Kitsilano line after receiving the ball from a 25-yard scrum early in the first half. He converted his own try.

Kits held a territorial margin throughout but could not cross the Victoria line. Their points were garnered on a penalty kick by Larry Doulands midway through the first half.

The game was played in a heavy downpour and the wet ball prevented good backfield play. Both teams reverted largely to scrum play.

Doulands, star of the home team, suffered a charlie horse in the game and had to be taken out.

Princess Fan Of Richard

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 9 (CP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the fiery forward of National Hockey League game, can take a bow; then curtsy with dignity. Princess Elizabeth said today she's one of his fans.

This came out while the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh were chatting during a maritime major league game between Charlottetown Islanders and Moncton Hawks.

Elizabeth referred to the National League game they saw between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers and said it was "a bit quiet." She would have liked to have seen the later game in which the Rocket scored a knockout, the Princess told Mrs. Leo Lamoureux, wife of the Charlottetown coach.

The later game was Wednesday's clash between Toronto Maple Leafs and Canadiens. Richard delivered a knockout punch to Bill Juzda, Toronto defenseman.

The couple watched the first period of today's game. Moncton ended up with a 5-3 victory.

Normal Cagers Win

Paced by Bruce Naylor, who pushed up 16 points, Normal Cagers trimmed Victoria College, 46-39, in an exhibition basketball game at the Normal School last night. Winners held a 28-18 margin at the half.

Gordon Borkes and Bob McConechy also starred for the future teachers with 11 and eight points, respectively. Archie McIntosh paced the Collegians with eight.

Bolt Leads Rich Tourney By One Stroke With 214

PINEHURST, N.C., Nov. 9 (AP)—Tommy Bolt took a one-under par 71 on treacherous rounds of 74 and 72 today to slip into a one-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $7,500 North and South open golf tournament with a total of 214.

The year's 27th leading money winner in professional circles with a $3,768 bankroll, Bolt led 36-hole leader Dr. Cary Middlecoff by one stroke. Middlecoff three-putted the last hole to finish with 73 for 215.

Five pros were locked at 216: par for the distance, and two

Will you be one of the thrifty million?

By the end of the first campaign week 290,000 Canadians had made sure they would share in the earnings of the new Canada Savings Bonds. By the end of the second week the throng had grown to 535,000. In the third week there were an estimated 800,000.

By November 15th there will be more than a million Canadians whose savings are invested in the new Canada Savings Bonds

Be one of the "thrifty million". If you buy Canada Savings Bonds before November 15th they are available at the price of 100. After November 15th the price will be 100 plus accrued interest calculated monthly to the date of purchase. This adjustment is necessary because coupons represent interest payments for full time periods.

If you have not yet placed your order don't wait for an investment dealer or bank to get in touch with you. Make a note to attend to buying your new Canada Savings Bonds early tomorrow!

Culbertson on Bridge - - - The Daily Cross-Word Puzzle - - -

Simple, garden-variety care is required of declarer in the majority of hands but it goes without saying that in the case of redoubled contracts or slam contracts, he should be particularly on guard. Consider this case:

North dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
AK53
842

EAST
K732
KQ964
AQ108

SOUTH
K2
AKJ1097
763

The bidding:
North East South West
1 Pass 1 Pass
2NT 2NT Pass Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass
Redbl Pass Pass Pass

North was "brave" when he redoubled the contract, since his opening bid had not been particularly robust, but his vote of confidence in partner should have had a better fate. Incidentally, South's leap to two no-trump was pretty brave too!

East, in risking the double, had intended to demand a lead of a suit hid by the dummy, but West elected to open his own spade suit. As it happened this was a lucky shot for the defense, because when East covered the spade jack, declarer's only side entry was driven out then and there.

South laid down the diamond king, and he was not pleased when East showed out. In a desperate effort to maintain communications, South now led the diamond jack, hoping West would accept his queen, but West was not so foolish—he declined the trick. South saw that it would be futile to go ahead with diamonds, so he led a club toward dummy, hoping for at least one trick in that suit. East won and knocked out the spade queen, and after that, declarer had to be satisfied with two top heart tricks, not one more diamond. The redoubled contract was down two for a penalty of 1,000 points.

If South had counted up to nine, he would have led the diamond jack at the second trick, in careful anticipation of a bad diamond break. Then if West held up the diamond ten could follow, and this time West would have to take his queen—or else.

Uncle Wiggily Story - - - By Howard Garbo

UNCLE WIGGILY IN DANGER

Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, their pockets filled with stones, were standing near Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. The puppy dogs had been hanging stones against tin cans to knock them off Uncle Wiggily's back fence.

But the little puppies made so much noise with their banging tin can game, that Uncle Wiggily politely asked them to run away and not to play so near his bungalow.

Though it may be fun for you little puppies to knock tin cans off my fence with stones," said Mr. Longears, "it is no fun for me. You make so much noise that I cannot write a bedtime story."

"So, very kindly, though they really didn't want to, Jackie and Peetie ran away. They still had plenty of stones in their pockets but they had no tin cans.

Then, as I told you in yesterday's story, Jackie said to Peetie, "We must be very brave, Brother Peetie. Very brave!"

"Why must we be brave?" Peetie wanted to know. "We don't have to be brave to throw stones at tin cans, do we Jackie?"

"No, we don't," Jackie replied. "I didn't have to take the pussy cats home in the dark. Chief, the police dog, took us all in his squad car."

"That's right," agreed Peetie. "But why must we be brave now with these stones in our pockets? I don't see anything to be brave about."

"Don't you?" asked Jackie. "Just come with me, Peetie, and hide back of this sassafras bush!"

"Is there something to be brave about back of the sassafras bush, Jackie?"

"Not exactly, Peetie. But we can hide here. Then we can look out and I think you will see something that will surprise you. Come on."

Jackie and Peetie, with stones in their pockets, hid back of the sassafras bush.

Peetie looked out and said, "I don't see anything to be brave about."

"Look back of that mulberry bush!" whispered Jackie. "What do you see? Take a look!"

Peetie looked carefully out from behind the sassafras bush. Then he quickly pulled in his head and whispered, "I see three foxes!"

"That's what we are going to do—if you are brave enough, answered Jackie.

"Oh, ho! I'm very brave!" barked Peetie. "I was brave the other night when we were going to take Joie, Torgie and Kittle Kai home in the dark—after we chased them up a tree for fun. Wasn't I brave then?"

"Yes, you were, Peetie," said Jackie. "But, after all, you and I didn't have to take the pussy cats home in the dark. Chief, Fox and Clarence, the little boy fox. I think they are sneaking up to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. They are going to jump in the open window and catch him at his typewriter where he is writing a bedtime story."

"Oh, dear! That's bad—very bad!" whispered Peetie. "Uncle Wiggily is in danger, isn't he?"

"Yes, Uncle Wiggily is in danger," answered Jackie.

"What can we do to save him?" asked Peetie.

"We must throw stones at those sneaking foxes and drive them away," whispered Jackie. "All ready now! Throw stones and drive the dangerous foxes away from Uncle Wiggily!"

The puppy dogs took stones from their pockets.

Will they save the rabbit under—I can tell you tomorrow if the speed of thread will turn into a merry-go-round and give the needle a ride on the thimble.

Baillie Committal Set Tuesday for Trial on Manslaughter Charge

Carl H. Baillie, 730 Vancouver Street, charged with manslaughter in connection with a two-car accident on the Sooke Road on July 26, was remanded to Tuesday for formal committal for trial after a preliminary hearing in provincial police court yesterday.

Mrs. Victor W. Jopp, Luxton, died in the accident which occurred near Colwood.

Evidence was that Baillie was driving alone in his late model car towards Victoria when he was in collision with one driven in the opposite direction by Herbert J. Bing of Sooke, a relative of Mrs. Jopp, who was riding in the back seat with her husband.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas said the evidence presented at the hearing was "enough that I have to commit the accused to trial."

He added, however, that the evidence was not "exactly strong." Mrs. Hilda Tindall, Colwood, who was with Mrs. Herbert at

Influx to Israel Drops to 5,000

JERUSALEM, Nov. 9 (AP).—Immigration to Israel dropped to 5,000 last month, lowest since the program for bringing Jews to this country began three years ago. Despite the drop, the Jewish Agency said the 1934 goal of 25,000 new citizens would be reached.
